

2022 Race Team Results Weekend 1

After a 2 week delay to the MACC race season, the weekend started out with a bang. Mother Nature decided to make up for the lack of early season snow by giving us 6 inches during the race on Saturday. With visibility low but spirits high, the race team hiked their way up to the start house to “kick-off” the 2022 season. Sunday provided to be a much better day with sunny skies and 20 degrees it was nearly a perfect day for skiing and racing, though with the good there is a bad. One of the team members had a crash and tweaked their knee, full details are unknown but they’ll likely miss the rest of the season. Despite the low visibility and continuously accumulating snow the team had solid results, place finishers are listed below.
